Circular Orders and Miscellaneous Information.

C.O. 1301.—The attention of the police throughout the State is drawn to C.O. 1301:—

In many instances recently lengthy telegrams have been despatched from out stations to the Chief Office, and also from station to station, where a report by Post would have served the purpose just as well.

It is not necessary to advise me by wire of every trivial occurrence, such as a small fire, a suicide, a sudden death, or a man being lost in the bush. Of course, whenever the circumstances of the case make it advisable for the officer in charge to immediately solicit advice from Head Quarters, a rigid adherence to this order will not be exacted.

Common sense ought to guide the police in this matter; besides, it is explicitly laid down in the regulations that the telegraph is not to be used except when the exigencies of police duty or the efficiency of the service make such a means of communication imperative. In future it must be distinctly understood that any officer or constable contravening this order will be debited with the cost of the message so transmitted.

FRED. HARE,
Commissioner of Police.

7th June, 1901.

FRED. HARE,
Commissioner of Police.

17-6-1901.

C.O. 1901.—The attention of the police is directed to a decision of the Full Court given on the 28th May, 1901, in re the application of Ludwig Hahn for a writ of certiorari to remove a conviction under Section 69 of "The Police Act, 1892."

The effect of this decision is that persons only can be dealt with under Section 69 who have been arrested under Section 49 for having been found in possession of, or conveying, anything reasonably suspected to be stolen, or otherwise unlawfully obtained.

If the possession or conveying was at some time previous to the arrest the case will not come within the scope of either of the sections mentioned.

FRED. HARE,
Commissioner of Police.

17-6-1901.
