Circular Orders and Miscellaneous Information.

The Criminal Code Act, 1902.

In connection with the Criminal Code Act, which came into force on the 1st inst., Officers in charge of Districts are requested to make the very closest study of the provisions of the Code, in order that they may be in a position to properly instruct and direct members of the force in their respective commands in the administration of this important measure.

The Code alters, repeals, or varies the existing law and statutes to such an extent that unless the utmost care and judgment is exercised in the enforcement of its provisions, it is clear that very grave difficulties and complications may result.

Officers will therefore use every diligence in mastering the details of the Act themselves, and will insist on the subordinate members of the force under their direction devoting as much time and attention as is practicable in acquiring a knowledge of the Act.

A copy of the Code has been already posted to each district officer, and a sufficient number of copies will be despatched to the different districts to supply each member of the force as soon as it is possible to obtain them from the Printer.

FRED. HARE,
Commissioner of Police.

FRED. HARE, Commissioner of Police.

No. 21.]

Circular Orders and Miscellaneous Information.

C.O.  $\frac{21}{1902}$ .—The attention of District Officers is drawn to that portion of Regulation No. 423 dealing with uniform measurements. It invariably happens that when Uniform Requisitions are received at the Chief Office, incorrect measurements are attached, and in some instances none whatever are forthcoming. Members of the Force cannot possibly expect to receive good-fitting uniforms unless the Contractor be supplied with correct measurements. District Officers will therefore see that the portion of the Regulation in question is strictly adhered to.

FRED. HARE,
Commissioner of Police.

19-5-1902.
