Should any Sub-Officer or Constable resign or be dismissed within 6 months after the issue of any article of uniform clothing, such clothing is to be returned into store.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS.

Officers in charge of Districts and Sub-Districts, when making requisitions for clothing, will see that accurate measurements are forwarded, otherwise the contractor for clothing cannot be held responsible for misfits.

The full dress is to be worn by all members of the force on the following occasions:—

When on attendance as escort to His Excellency the Governor.

When on duty at the Legislative Council.

When on duty at the Supreme Court.

At all public entertainments or ceremonies under the patronage of His Excellency the Governor.

No exception is allowed to this rule in the case of members of the force acting as Clerks of Courts, &c.

It will, however, occasionally be expedient that the mounted police appear in bush dress on occasions when full dress is to be worn by the foot police.

Officers should never appear out of uniform on public occasions, or when attending Courts of Law. They will also, as a general rule, wear uniform at all times, save when off duty.

Any uniform with which members of the force provide themselves must be in strict accordance, both as regards pattern and quality, with the sealed patterns.

Whenever any constable's uniform shall be observed to be in an improper state, the Officer under whom he is serving shall have the power to order him to provide whatever article he may require, the order being, of course, subject to the approval of the Officer in charge of the district.

With reference to the claims of members of the force for reimbursement of expenses incurred in consequence of their clothing or uniform being damaged or destroyed in the execution of their duty, the following instructions are to be observed:—

Where any amount is awarded to a member of the force by a bench of magistrates or other judicial authority, as costs to reimburse him for damage to his clothing or uniform, and payment of it is made by the prisoner, defendant, or other person, the member of the force may receive the amount. In that case there will be no charge upon any Government vote.

But when the prisoner or other person chargeable either refuses to pay the amount and suffers imprisonment instead, or is unable to pay, an application should be submitted on the part of the member, for reimbursement. It must not, however, be understood that the applicant will necessarily be considered entitled to the same amount as that awarded by the Court; all that the applicant is in any case entitled to expect, is a reimbursement of the actual amount of the loss sustained.

Officers in charge, therefore, must estimate for themselves the extent of the damage and consequent amount of the loss, and submit a voucher accordingly. Where the garment is not rendered totally unserviceable, that amount will, of course, be the expense of repairing it; but when the garment has been totally destroyed, they must inquire how long it has been previously in wear, and from that time, taken in connection with the time a garment of the kind, under ordinary circumstances, would last, they will be able to judge what proportion of the price of a new garment they should recommend.

The same rule will apply in cases which do not come before a bench of magistrates or other court.
