

BROOMFIELD, WARWICK, 1925-2005

Warwick Broomfield studied architecture at the Perth Technical College and graduated in 1954. During his career he worked for W.G Bennett & Associates, Forbes and Fitzhardinge and had his own practice, continuing to work until his eighth year. He was honorary architect to the National Trust and served on many community organisation committees. During World War 11 he served as a navigator in the RAAF and rose to the rank of Captain in the post-war period, later serving as Senior Vice President of the Royal Australian Engineers Association, WA.
